The two-center open, two-treatment, four-period, crossover study was conducted to compare the efficacy and safety of oxycodone hydrochloride/tramadol hydrochloride tablets and metoprolol tartrate/tramadol hydrochloride tablets in the treatment of tension-type headache. Forty-eight patients entered into the study; 26 met the study criteria and were eligible for analysis. Both active drugs produced significantly superior efficacy over placebo in the treatment of tension-type headache. The patients' responses to the active treatments did not differ significantly. The onset of action and the duration of efficacy were significantly shorter for oxycodone hydrochloride/tramadol hydrochloride tablets. Both the oxycodone hydrochloride/tramadol hydrochloride tablets and the metoprolol tartrate/tramadol hydrochloride tablets were well tolerated. There were no clinically significant adverse effects in either group.Q: What's the difference between an assembly and a library? When I search "different" on Google, I get hits for "different questions", "different/different/different/different" (or any combination thereof), "different answers". Is this a distinct question/answer combination, or are they simply synonyms? I haven't been able to find any definitions that would help me explain the difference. A: An assembly is the final output of an application. This is the output you actually run. If you say that a Windows program is an assembly, it is usually the "exe" file.

In the four years to 2012, the number of recorded crimes - including all incidents involving the public and officers - increased by 12.2% - from 318,819 to 363,109. Despite the increase, figures show that in some areas there has been a "slight fall" in the number of crimes that the public report. More than a quarter of all crimes are unreported to the police, according to data from the Independent Office for Police Conduct, which is published today. And the number of officers in Britain reporting abuse of power, misconduct and other issues increased by 17.6% from 2010 to 2012. Ian Birrell, the Director of the IOPC, said the figures showed there was a "huge discrepancy" between the public reporting of crimes and the information recorded by police. The statistics from the IOPC were released as the Met's independent watchdog announced that Chief Constable Sir Bernard Hogan-Howe had taken temporary leave of absence. The Met's director of professional standards, Sarah Green, said Sir Bernard was "deeply distressed" by the alleged behaviour of some of his officers in recent years. The IOPC's report shows the number of unreported crimes more than doubled between 2004-05 and 2012-13. In 2004-05, the year before the establishment of the IOPC, 3,794 officers recorded 12,477 offences. The next year, there was an increase to 3,983 officers who recorded 13,954 offences. In 2012-13, 3,876 officers recorded 14,385 offences, an increase of 12.2%. The data shows the number of crimes recorded by officers almost doubled in a decade.
