The present drum is of a type that can be held directly by a column or roller frame without any additional devices, except for one side spring loaded drum. The side spring loaded drum can be quickly and conveniently removed and replaced by a vacuum ring or the like. The spring loaded drum disclosed in the present invention does not require that the tubes be prevented from rolling on the drum. The present lockable drum has an intermediate plate between two drums. The intermediate plate has a central through hole through which a lock pin is passed. A plurality of apertures are formed on the inner wall of the plate, such that the lock pin is received through one aperture, which can then be locked by a locking member which is movably inserted into the aperture and is coupled with the lock pin. The movement of the locking member is positively locked. The present lockable drum is advantageous over the conventional lockable drum in that a 09e8f5149f
